

Note from the Editors

This issue of the Nordic Wittgenstein Review is the first one produced by the new editorial team, appointed by the editorial board in September 2019: Gisela Bengtsson (Uppsala), who will continue as editor, is joined by Oskari Kuusela (Norwich), and Cato Wittusen (Stavanger). Jasmin Trächtler (Bergen) steps in as a new book review editor, while Alois Pichler (Bergen) continues as the editor of the “From the Archives” section, and Simo Säätelä (Bergen) remains editor-in-chief.

This is also NWR's first double issue: due to the publication of a Special Issue on “Post-Truth” earlier this year we did not publish an ordinary June issue. The present issue is probably also the last one published according to our old publication model (two issues per annual volume, published in June and December). This publication model was originally intended for publishing a print journal and has proved somewhat cumbersome and not very well suited to Open Access electronic publishing. We are now instead moving over to a continuous submission/publication model, where submissions that have been accepted after the review process are pre-published for open review, lasting for approximately six weeks. After this, the author will have the possibility to make corrections and amendments resulting from the open review. The final version of the paper is then published on the website. At the end of the year, all submissions published during the year are collected into an annual volume that will also be available in printed form (print on demand). We aim at publishing approximately the same number of articles per year as in earlier volumes.

Another piece of news is that our long-awaited and long-promised print on demand solution is finally taking concrete shape. We have, after a time-consuming process, found a provider of a solution that promises to satisfy our criteria for quality, ease of use, and reasonable price. We hope (but dare not yet promise) that print copies of previous issues, starting with issue 3(1), will be available for order from January 2020.

More good news: We just got the message that NWR has been awarded a grant to support the publication of the journal for two years forward from NOP-HS, the Nordic Board for Periodicals in the Humanities and Social Sciences. This grant can hopefully be used, among other things, for carrying through the print on demand solution as well as for an update of the journal's website.

We must, however, end this editorial on a sad note. Sören Stenlund, former Professor in Theoretical Philosophy at the University of Uppsala, passed away earlier this autumn. Sören was one of the most prominent figures of the Wittgenstein research community in the Nordic countries, and the initiator of the Nordic Wittgenstein Society. Thus, he is also ultimately the person whom we can thank for the existence of this journal. Sören always emphasized the importance of Nordic co-operation in Wittgenstein research both on an institutional, and more importantly, on a personal level. He is sorely missed by friends, colleagues, and former students. The Nordic Wittgenstein research community will never be the same without him. We are grateful to Sharon Rider for letting us publish her obituary for Sören.

Finally, as always, thanks are due to all those who have contributed to the journal, and especially to our hard-working reviewers.
